Nothing fundamentally wrong with this section, searching for songs/ playlists you recently/ frequently play is one of the top use cases. This section should definitely be on the home screen

The concert feature is nice, but there are so many other use cases that are happen much more frequently, like searching for music. The space is better used

I don't think there's anything wrong with a "Jump back in" section, but it's redundant to have it right below the top section with your latest/frequent listens. This space should be used for a more frequent use case

Usual tab section, nothing wrong here
